Investment Strategy

We believe that EMs are structurally inefficient, thereby offering attractive rewards to successful active managers. Such inefficiencies are principally due to: insufficient analysis of the interplay between top-down and bottom-up factors; the under-researched nature of numerous EM companies; and behavioural biases stemming from the skewed index composition.

We also believe that powerful secular growth opportunities exist in Emerging Markets, which are often overlooked by traditional and quantitative strategies, and that the best returns are made by consistently investing in undervalued growth companies.

To exploit these inefficiencies and opportunities, we systematically apply a rigorous investment process, which aims to identify attractively valued companies in the context of their assets or earnings, verify their investment case via a variety of different sources, and identify the catalyst that will release value.

Portfolio construction is the synthesis of idea generation, conviction and risk management. The strategy will typically hold between 50 and 60 stocks. We have a disciplined approach to risk management that aims to preserve capital and control downside risk. This is reinforced by TT's independent risk management team.

We believe the following aspects of our investment process set TT apart from the competition:

Top-down and bottom-up linkage. Our process utilises a combination of top-down and bottom-up analysis. This linkage allows top-down factors to guide the team as to where to focus their resources to find attractively valued growth stocks.

Focus on Free Cash Flow. We focus much of our analysis and engagement on Free Cash Flow in order to understand the potential for the company to grow, and ultimately to return capital to shareholders.

Active currency management. The primary benefit of our ability to currency hedge is that it facilitates purer local-market-based stock analysis. Indeed, we are able to own attractive stocks in countries whose currencies may be vulnerable, benefiting from growth in the stock price whilst not suffering a corresponding loss in the currency translation.

Why TT?

TT International offers a range of long-only and hedge fund strategies designed to meet clients' investment objectives and risk budgets. We have over 30 years' experience of conviction investing and a strong track record of delivering compelling risk-adjusted returns.

TT manages assets for a growing institutional client base, which is increasingly diverse in type and location.

To align our interests, TT's investment teams are compensated based on the returns they deliver to clients, and many of our employees also invest their own assets alongside those of our clients.

Furthermore, we believe that investment performance suffers from diseconomies of scale if assets under management grow too large. We therefore limit capacity in all of our products, enabling us to remain nimble and maximising our chances of success. Rather than simply being asset gatherers, we pride ourselves on our investment-led culture that focuses on doing what is right for existing clients.
